What You Need to know as a Student Loan Borrower

About the Ombudsman

Maryland's Student Loan Ombudsman ("Ombudsman") works for the Commissioner of Financial Regulation in the Department of Labor, Licensing and Regulation. The Ombudsman's main job is to help student loan borrowers connect with their student loan servicers. That means that the Ombudsman takes complaints from student loan borrowers about problems they've had with their student loan servicer and then contacts the servicer to try to help get the complaints solved. The Ombudsman also helps borrowers understand their rights and responsibilities under the terms of their student loans.

Student loan servicer problems that the Ombudsman can assist with include: servicer failure to communicate with a borrower, errors in crediting principal and interest payments, misapplied payments, inaccurate interest rate calculations, billing errors, errors with respect to loan consolidations or modifications, and/or inappropriate collection activity or tactics.

To help you decide how best to solve your complaint or for other information about your student loan, visit our resource's page at: www.dllr.state.md.us/finance/consumers/frslombudlinks.shtml. The information on the website should be useful in helping you resolve your problem with your student loan servicer. The website also includes instructions on how to file a complaint with the Ombudsman using the Student Loan Consumer Complaint Form.

About your Loan

It is your obligation to repay your student loans. The terms of your loans are contained in the loan documents you signed when the loans were first made. Additional rules may apply to your loans depending upon the type of student loans you have. Keep all the paperwork related to your student loans together as that information will be needed by your student loan servicer to properly identify your loan and the rules that apply to it.

If you are having trouble keeping track of your loans or problems paying your student loans there are various options open to you to help simplify your loans or provide different repayment options. In either case, you should contact your student loan servicer. If you do not know which student loan servicer is servicing your loans, you should be able to retrieve this information from the National Student Loan Data System at https://nslds.ed.gov/nslds/nslds\_SA/.

Questions and Concerns

It is recommended that you first contact your student loan servicer to try and resolve your particular issue before filing a complaint with the Ombudsman. However, if you believe that your student loan servicer has made mistakes regarding your loan and/or is unresponsive to your requests for assistance you can visit our website at: www.dllr.state.md.us/finance/consumers/frslombudlinks.shtml and file a complaint with the Ombudsman using the Student Loan Consumer Complaint Form. Or, you contact us calling 410-230-6077 or toll free at 888-784-0136.
